ANTIOCH COLLEGE WELCOMES NEW TRANSFER STUDENTS; -- First Year Applications Will Be Accepted in Near Future --

Yellow Springs, Ohio, November 28, 2007 – After the announcement last month that the threatened suspension of operations had been lifted, the Antioch College Alumni Board announced today that the historic 155 year old College in Yellow Springs, Ohio would again be accepting transfer students for the coming academic year.

Thanks to unprecedented, last-minute efforts by loyal alumni committed to the uninterrupted continuation of Antioch College as a distinguished institution of higher education with a tenured faculty, more than $18 million in gifts and pledges has been raised. The college is the residential undergraduate component of Antioch University, whose Board of Trustees announced on June 12, 2007 to close the campus under a plan that called for possibly reopening it in 2012. Antioch University also has five nonresidential campuses around the country, all of which are to remain open.

The college is open, currently accepting transfer students, and looks forward to accepting first year students in the near future. In the meantime, all prospective students are encouraged to contact the Antioch College Office of Admissions and Financial Aid with any questions they might have. Information is available by calling (937) 769-1100 or by visiting Future Students page.

“Antioch lives!” said Alumni Board President Nancy Crow. “In the great tradition that is Antioch, Antiochians from around the world have come together with faculty, students and staff to save our beloved institution. We raised more than $18 million and worked to craft an alternative business and fundraising strategy for the Board to consider. We are very pleased at this outcome, and look forward to working together in the days and months ahead.”

Since the University Board of Trustees announced the suspension of operations in June of 2007, alumni across the country have rallied to their alma mater’s defense. Alumni chapters have grown worldwide. Additionally, the Alumni Board also recently premiered its redesigned and reorganized Web site, www.antiochians.org.

The Alumni Board is continuing with its fundraising and planning efforts. For additional information on the Antioch College Alumni Association and its Revival Fund, visit our Web site.
